

IT'S TIME SOME PARENTS GOT GROUNDED.

What would you do if your kids wouldn't talk to you about something that could really mess up their lives? You might think about grounding them to get their attention.

But what are your kids supposed to do when it's you who won't talk to them?

Because that's what's happening with too many parents when it comes to drugs. It's a real shame because kids who learn a lot about drugs from their parents are 50% less likely to do drugs.

Of course it's not easy. But surely those odds make it worth the effort.

There's all kinds of help for you on our website. Be ready because your kids really do want to hear from you about drugs. But if you don't get involved, what can they do about it? Ground you?
